WE NOMINATE

Ira Owen Wade, one of this country's most effective "ambassadors" to the Old World and the recent recipient of the French Legion of Honor, the highest honor France can confer for distinguished, non-governmental service. Just over the threshold of his fourth decade as a Princetonian, this 59-year old native of Richmond, Va., has been directing Princeton University's largest academic department, Modern Languages and Literatures, for the past ten years and has been primarily responsible for the success of the high-sounding but reassuringly penetrating Special Program in European Civilization that is concerned with the culture and civilization of the dominant nations of Continental Europe.

In expressing its gratitude to Wade, who is currently combining his Princeton duties with a visiting professorship at the University of Pennsylvania, the French government pointed to his accomplishments as a writer and educator and emphasized the active interest he has demonstrated over the years in French culture and the teaching of the French language. Behind the citation, relayed by French Ambassador Maurice Couve de Murville, lay recognition of Wade's efforts to bridge the gap between the Western Hemisphere and Europe by insisting that competence in a foreign language should be supplemented by searching study of a nation's ideals and institutions and its contributions to the traditions of American civilization.

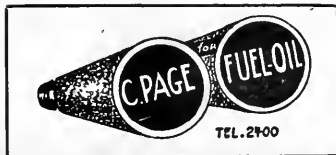

One of the most worthwhile by-products of what is known as "Wade's Special Program," which was first offered to Princeton undergraduates in 1951-52 and took shape during a post-World War II leave Wade spent in Europe, is the work-study program that enables carefully selected American students to hold summer-time jobs in France and other European countries during the months between junior and senior years. Under consideration is an even more comprehensive program, similar in its essentials to the Eisenhower Exchange Fellowship Program, that will eventually recruit outstanding young men and women from Germany, Spain and Italy as well as France for temporary, or vacation, employment in American businesses and corporations.

Successor to the late Christian Gauss as departmental chairman and the sixth teacher-scholar to hold the 86-year old John Woodhull Professorship in Modern Languages, Wade is a tireless innovator in his section (French, German, Italian, Portuguese, Russian, Spanish) department and several years ago introduced one of Princeton's most popular courses, "From Humanism to Existentialism." His pre-Princeton experience included a year of high school teaching in Richmond, World War I service with the Office of Naval Intelligence and two years at Marietta College, Ohio. He took his Princeton doctorate in 1924 and before joining the University Faculty on a permanent basis completed a two-year tour as Modern Language chairman at the University of Western Ontario.

For sensing the importance of preventing this country's political and military allies from "becoming our intellectual enemies;" for working constantly for better cultural relations between the United States and Europe; for seeking to raise ever higher the standards of liberal education in America; he is Town Topics' nominee for Ten-Year Story. Men and women in uniform were still a common sight on Nassau Street; price and rent controls were still firmly in effect; new automobiles were delivered to customers only after they had spent months on lengthy waiting lists, and parking meters had not yet arrived on the scene to begin their ceaseless, terrible-like chomping of small change. It was the spring of 1946, a scant half year after the end of the world's biggest conflict.

In the decade that followed, Princeton has stretched and expanded constantly, to a point far beyond the original concept of officials in various municipal capacities and others who studied, formally or informally, the path of progress the community might follow. Ten years old itself with this issue, Town Topics takes a backward glance at the myriad changes that have transpired since that far-off first post-war year and finds they paint a fascinating picture.

Despite a Federal census-taking in 1950 that was generally considered inaccurate, educated estimates here agree that the community's population has doubled in the past decade—from approximately 11,500 to some 23,000 today. Inevitably, housing sought to keep pace: 152 garden-apartments in Stanworth, 252 in the University-owned Harrison Street development; houses, everywhere like mushrooms, that ranged in number from scores of individualy-built dwellings to developments such as Paisley, Deepth, Shady

This Week

The possibility that residential streets in Princeton Township may soon be used by interstate busses, regardless of the wishes of residents or officials of the municipality, is among the stories in this week's issue. Other news includes a report on candidates for municipal offices; facts on plans for continued building activity in both Borough and Township; and a variety of action in various courts involving residents of the community.

Progress of Princeton High School in the State basketball tournament and a report on the season just completed by the newly-formed junior league of the Princeton Hockey Club are features in the sports section, starting on page 19. Church news (22 and 23) includes a report on the service of Intercession for Alabama Negroes, while the theatre and music columns (6 and 7) report on a wide variety of coming events and review two recent offerings.

Brook, Carnegie Estates, Cuyler, Overbrook and Princeton Knolls. Other construction necessarily boomed, too, highlighted by such multi-million dollar structures as the University's Dillon Gymnasium and Firestone Library and the Seminary's Campus Center. Bursting school populations meant additions to the buildings at Miss Fine's and Princeton Country Day, and later even more extensively to Valley Road and the High School, plus the construction of the entirely new Littlebrook School.

Religion. Program Broadened. Churches, too, kept pace, ranging from completely new structures for the Lutherans, the Christian Scientists, the Catholics and the Friends to major renovations and expansion undertaken virtually everywhere else. Proof that religious faith kept pace with the flow of new residents into the booming community was the founding of churches for Lutherans, Unitarians and Baptists, whose presence broadened the town's base in this most important aspect of community life.

Nassau Street's facade, more sharply altered 20 years ago by the creation of Palmer Square, nonetheless was not kept static as new stores replaced some burned-out by war-time destruction and others which had outlived their usefulness. Time and again, the guiding hand of Operation Nassau saw to it that building exteriors in design and color maintained the town's conservative but popular colonial appearance.

Social changes, too, came to pass. Sunday movie theatres, by war-time gubernatorial edict as recreation for service men, came to stay. Paradoxically enough, the Township then voted to dispense with Sunday tavern openings.

Facking meters were advocated, resisted, installed, maligned and accepted in turn. Off-street parking areas, car-marked throughout the business community—Continued on Page 2 munity by borough officials as a vital transfusion into the commercial bloodstream, were rejected in one of the bitterest battles the normally quiet community has known.

Unity Rejected. So was consolidation, a change that proved too great even for a community undergoing constant change to accept. Beason in both municipalities at a time when merger seemed most likely to be jai-lesed effected, it may now be an issue of the past as the borough retains a relatively somnolent status quo and the township prepares to pass it in growing population and growing pains.

In another field, however, another and more worthwhile form of "consolidation" was peacefully effected. In the late '40s, borough and township schools were among the first in the State to end segregation, ending in this community, at least, the lie that had been written into the concept that all men are created equal.

As Princeton grew and grew in residential stature, it expanded, too, in its role lines of "industry," education and research. Additions to the scene included such enterprises as Gallup & Robinson, Applied Science, Horizons; while others on the pre-war scene (Educational Testing, Opinion Research, Benson & Benson) came in occupancy or buy entire buildings on the business scene.

As it does in much larger urban centers, rapid growth turned into residential stature. The multi-million dollar Shopping Center was built in the outskirts of Princeton Township, seeking to lure customers with promises of unlimited parking opportunities and "one-stop" shopping. ETS, too, eyed the need for more space in the country and planned to put its sprawling operations now widely scattered throughout the community, under one roof on a huge tract of land purchased in Lawrence Township.

In 10 years, 10 times Bigger. Town Topics' growth in the past war decade is reflected in the growth of the community. Its 1947 (13407 in 1946, 8881 in 1956) is indicative of the figures required to keep pace with community-wide leadership.

In other respects, today's issue

Ready? Set? Go!

With State Highway Department officials predicting that Princeton's new Nassau Bayard Lane-Stockton Street traffic light system will be in operation by next week, Borough Engineer J. Russell Riker released the following information to help motorists adjust to the multi-unit set-up:

(1) Nassau Street will consist of two lanes on the north side approaching the light, the left lane for driving through to Battle Monument or Stockton Street, the right lane for right turns onto Bayard Bayard, will be divided into three lanes, the eastern lane for northbound traffic, the center lane for turning into Miss Fine's School driveway, the approach to the driveway), Stockton also will be divided into three lanes, the northern lane for westbound traffic, the center lane for eastbound traffic turning north into Bayard and the southern lane for eastbound traffic entering Nassau.

(2) As now is the case, there will be parking on the north side of Stockton, the east side of Bayard or the south side of Nassau (at the Mercer Street intersection). Also, there will be no parking for 200 feet on the south side of Stockton and the west side of Bayard or for 150 feet on the north side of Nassau.

is more than ten times larger than the issue numbers of "T. N. 1. It contains 2400 column inches, compared to 216 in 1946; and whereas the first issue carried 149 column inches of display advertising, today's has over 1500.

The greatest contrast is in classified advertising. The issue of March 17-23, 1946 (which nominated the Princetonians who had served in World War II as Men and Women of the Week and announced a food conservation campaign launched by Mayor Minot C. Morgan, Jr.) carried no classified advertising. The tenth anniversary issue has more than 250 such ads, and the seven pages on which they appear constitute a record volume.

Whatever its measure of success, Town Topics is happiest to have been a part of one particular undertaking. As the source through which the annual Christmas Fund and other community appeals have been launched during the past four years, more than $23,000 has been realized in gifts from residents of this warm-hearted community.

The Wayward Bus? Township officials and residents were suddenly faced with a real dilemma this week — the possibility that express buses linking Princeton with New York City may be travelling through the residential northeast section of town within less than two weeks. Much worse, there was also the possibility that nothing can be done to prevent the undesirable situation.

Two alert and interested Township citizens, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Frank, 273 Jefferson Road, "discovered" the dilemma two weeks ago, purely by chance. Out —

Handwriting on the Wall. Remember the song about father putting the paper on the wall? He put the parlor paper in the hall, if you'll recall, and even put a border on grandma's shawl. We were reminded of the old boy the other day when we visited Morris Maple to find out what's going on the wall this spring.

Mr. Maple has, of course, the papers that are all pasted and ready for you to apply yourself, just the way father did. We noticed, however, that Mr. Maple winced when he showed us these catalogues, and we got the distinct impression that he thinks a professional does a better job.

But if you are determined to have your husband do it himself, here are some of the papers we saw. There's a cowboy one, in several different color combinations, an all-over leaf design that won't care if you don't quite match the repeat, and a fantastic thing called "Saturday Night."

We saw this one first in gold on black, but it comes in many colors. It's a series of cartoons, broad in humor and in execution, showing the old-fashioned Victorian bathroom on a Saturday night. There's a lass in a wooden farm bathtub, a corseted dowager, a gay blade trimming his handle-bar mustaches — you go on from there.

At the other end of the scale, so far as taste goes, there are the sophisticated Katzenbach and Warren papers, so avant-garde that their catalogue says "1957-58" on its cover. All these papers are plastic coated, but they are done with a low gloss so that they look like conventional surfaces. And the patterns are ones that you can use in other rooms besides kitchen and bath.

In the K. & W. line, you'll like "Courtyard Texture" if your tastes run to modern. In this one, skipping children soften a geometric pattern of stones, walls and trellises. Another design, in gold, is made of blurred rectangles. "Folded Ribbon" looks like ribbon candy. "St. Alban's Brick" is a life-size photograph of a grey brick wall.

Among the 30 different lines represented in the Morris Maple Store at 200 Nassau, there is Strahan, a company that specializes in old Colonial papers, and a pair called Amer-Tec and Han-Tec. "Eastern Legend", one of Han-Tec's, has Chinese calligraphy in gold or blue on white, whether it's a laundry list or Lao Tse, we leave to the scholars.

The "Dutch Boy" paint company has a new latex-base paint called "Nalplex". Fast-drying, and stain resistant, it has a really flat finish that rolls or brushes on a wall very easily. They say you can even go back the next day and retouch the spots you missed. Comes in 15 colors plus two shades of white.

Spring Shower. Linens and towels, table accessories and personal gifts shower on every prospective June bride at this time of year, and the Town Shop, 67 Palmer Square, has all of these gifts in lovely abundance.

Towels in pastel or white have appliques of birds, flower bouquets or butterflies. (Monogrammed towels too, of course.) Linens are usually luncheon sets, like the four-place (or six) set of linen mats with a border that artfully combines embroidery and cut-out work. Another set has mats of hand-embroidered linen with a border scalloped in deep ecru, and a simple flower design in one corner.

Fibre mats from Switzerland are an interweaving of fine gold strands, colored fibre (turquoise or brown) and white. Another set of mats blend nylon with silver lurex. These mats are non-tarnishable, washable, and no-ironable.

The laminated mat appears this spring with two new designs: daisies and oaks. Both these—the daisy especially—are simpler and bolder than the mats you have seen before in this series.

Real butterflies are imprisoned in some new bowls and trays. The basic substance is thick plastic (quarter-inch) with sequins and gold stardust scattered through it. The butterflies—one or two to a dish—flit among the jewels. Brilliant little pieces: really too bad to fill the shallow bowl with cheese or the big bowl with salad. There are round and oblong trays, too, in various sizes. Prices start at $4.25 for the little bowl.

Personal gifts for an engagement party might include the satin lingerie cases in white or pastels, with travel slippers that go along. Or a set of clip and earrings in ridged gold with settings of chrysoprase, "pearls" or something that looks like amethyst. Excellent jewelry to wear with a spring suit.

Father to the Man. Between the Junior Shop, 73 Palmer Square, and The English Shop on up the Square at 33, a young Princetonian never has to leave home. He can start out with a size three linen suit and graduate 20 years later with a tropical worsted in "burnt grass" green. All it takes is a walk up the square.

The linen suits at the Junior Shop are three-to-six in size ($11.95), with a red cardigan piped in charcoal, white with navy, yellow with brown, and short trousers that match the darker color. The red is especially masculine.

More conventional young men may select an Eton in grey or navy, at $19.95. And for that first Communion, there are white suits in linen for seven-to-twelves at $14.95.

of the blue, they received a letter from the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington, advising them that the Suburban Rapid Transit Co. of New Brunswick would be able to start operating express schedules along Princeton routes on March 13.

Last June, after the New Brunswick company had announced a proposal to institute such express service, the Franks dispatched a message to the ICC, requesting that they hold a series of public hearings on the proposal. As they learned much too late (two weeks ago), public hearings were held in New Brunswick and Newark two days before their message reached Washington, so they were merely placed on a mailing list pending later developments — the first apparently being announcement of the start of actual service.

The Franks contacted Congressman Frank Thompson, Jr. to protest the bus action and he, in turn, went directly to the ICC with the pressing Princeton problem. Anthony Arpaia, ICC chairman, wrote at once to the Franks to inform them that they could petition for a re-hearing of the matter, but that reconsideration was unlikely because results of the Newark and New Brunswick hearings were "well-publicized" and expenses involved were extremely high.

Township Officials Act. Armed with their letter from Mr. Arpaia, the Franks took the problem to Township Clerk Joseph E. Nini, who was not notified of the imminent bus schedule because the Township was not "a party of record" with the ICC as the Franks happened to be. Clerk Nini conferred hastily with Mayor John H. Wellner Jr. and the matter was referred to Township Attorney Gordon Griffin for immediate action.

According to information supplied the Franks by the ICC, persons or groups petitioning the ICC for a new hearing must direct their messages to Mr. Arpaia's attention and include 15 copies of each message. To call quick attention to the case, in view of the possible starting date of the bus service, the Franks and others were advised to use the following case file number: MC115-116.

Clerk Nini said the Township Committee was advised of last June's hearings, but, in compliance with normal policy, did not send a representative to either of them. The committee did dispatch an official letter to the Public Utilities Commission, however, stating that it was not opposed to the express bus idea, but was opposed to use of the Township's residential streets by the buses.

A public hearing in the Borough last July 12 brought similar opinion. People thought it would be fine for express buses to enter and leave Princeton on Nassau Street, using North Harrison Street for turnabout purposes at the Princeton Shopping Center. They were against a route that would find buses proceeding west to Witherspoon, north to Valley Road, east to the Shopping Center, south on Harrison to Hamilton Avenue, east to Snowdon Lane and south to Nassau. But this public hearing followed the bus company's hearings by two weeks.

By "well-publicized," Mr. Arpaia meant that results of the Newark and New Brunswick sessions were printed in the Federal Register, hardly a publication which is widely read in Princeton. So, without challenge, Suburban Rapid Transit now has the option of using streets that are not state highways throughout the residential, "playground - like" Township area, commencing March 13.

Ready for Primary. Battle lines for the April 17 primary election fight in Princeton's Borough and Township were drawn this week, with little likelihood of any eleven-hour altercations before the Thursday evening deadline. And, though there were no extra candidates for any open position, there was an early indication that competition on the local level might be just as lively as the anticipated national-scale political warfare.

As expected but not officially announced until this week, incumbents Raymond F. Male and Richard W. Colman Jr., both Democrats, will run again in an attempt to retain the 3-3 Democrat-GOP balance on the present Borough Council. Mr. Male, who tried unsuccessfully to unseat Republican Mayor P. Mackey Sturges last fall, said he probably will be obliged to resign his much-liked post as president of the Princeton Democratic Club to take another crack at the Council.

Lined up against the Democratic hopefuls for Council will be Professor Alfred E. Sorenson, a former member of the Borough governmental organization, and Maurice A. Mather, long-time civic leader. Mr. Sorenson leaned as a particularly strong GOP candidate in view of his small four-vote loss to Democrat Dan D. Coyle in November's balloting. In commenting on the forthcoming fight, Mr. Male said he and his running-mate, Mr. Colman, will base a lot of their effort on the record they have.

carved while members of a Republican-led Council, with emphasis on objectives instituted since advocated by Democratic spokesmen last fall. The party leader, an aide in Governor Meyner's Trenton camp, pointed out that Democratic Club regulations state specifically that club officeholders cannot run for public office, thereby necessitating his withdrawal as president to seek the more important Council seat.

Two Township Vacancies. As in the Borough, two spots on the Township Committee will be up for the grabbing this somewhat simplified Princeton election year. And there will be some new faces on the Township political horizon, for only incumbent Richard H. Wood, Democrat, will bid for re-election. Hugh D. Wise, Republican committeeman, will be out of the running due to a switch in his residency, from Township to Borough.

The Democrats will hit with a one-two educational punch in the Township primary, offering Ansley J. Coale, 155 Edgerstone Road, as Mr. Wood's political partner. Both men hold Princeton University professorships along with the Borough's Professor Sorenson.

To vie for the same committee posts sought by Professors Wood and Coale, the GOP will counter with newcomers James G. Campbell Jr., 93 Battle Road, and John S. Mount, 90 Cuyler Road. Mr. Campbell, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, is an investment counsellor in Trenton while Mr. Mount, a Princeton University alumnus, is an administrative leader with Gallup & Robinson, local opinion research firm.

The Republicans also will run Stuart Robson, 29 Rollingmead, for the job as Township Tax Assessor, formerly held by ailing William Karch and recently handled by the candidate as assistant tax assessor for the past two years. Caught short on this position, the Democrats will either nominate a candidate by Thursday evening or select one by write-in in next month's primaries.

Leaders of both Princeton parties stressed the fact that Thursday is the last day for registration for the primary vote.

Serious Accident Here. Reckless driving charges were filed in Township Court this week against Wilson Nelson, 7 Leigh Avenue, driver of a 1953 Pontiac involved in a serious one-car accident on Brewer's Hill, Lawrenceville Road, early last Friday morning. Mr. Nelson lost control of his auto at the hill's summit, rolled over several times and, while hounding, the vehicle severed a light pole 10 feet above its base.

Emlin Smith, 106 Birch Avenue, one of two passengers in the car, suffered serious back injuries in the mishap and, according to his physician, remained in "critical" condition at Town Topics' press deadline. The other passenger, Harry P. Hairston, 153 Witherspoon, rushed to Princeton Hospital with Mr. Smith by the First Aid Unit of Princeton, was released after treatment for cuts and bruises.

In addition to the pole and the auto, which was completely demolished, trees and a hedge row on the Lawrenceville Road property of W. T. White were damaged.

The Spirit Was Willing. Performing effectively if not brilliantly in his own defense, Charles R. Erdman Jr., 20 Boudinot Street, former mayor of Princeton Borough, this week cleared himself of a pair of traffic charges in Township Court. In short, the well-known resident proved convincingly that he was not guilty of two complaints—failure to report an accident and leaving the scene of same—which grew out of a minor collision on Mercer Street during a bad snowstorm.

Only defense difficulty arose when investigating officer John Seeley pulled his well-sleeved "ace" and displayed a damage estimate of $167 for Mr. Erdman's car, thus placing it in a legally reportable category, after the defendant had produced an estimate showing $95 worth of damages, safely under the $100 reportable minimum. Mr. Erdman explained this apparent discrepancy, with conviction, by informing Magistrate Louis R. Gerber that he had had "extra" work done on his car, since the vehicle was in a garage for accident repairs anyhow.

James Dixon, Little Rocky Hill, the other driver involved in the mishap with ex-mayor Erdman, also was freed of the same two complaints as the magistrate observed, "You both complied with the spirit, if not the letter of the law." Then, Magistrate Gerber imposed a fine of $25 on Mr. Dixon for operating an auto without a driver's license and a mandatory fine of $55 on Mrs. Marion T. Dixon (no kin), Mercer Street, for allowing Mr. Dixon, an unlicensed motorist, to use her car.

In the only other case on Tuesday night's docket, Wendell H. Pigman, a Graduate College student from New York City, pleaded guilty to speeding 70 miles an hour in a 45-mile zone, a complaint brought by Officer Fred Porter. The magistrate fined the defendant $25 and notified New York that driving privileges are to be revoked for 10 days.

Steamed up over this traffic violation, Magistrate Gerber proceeded to issue warrants for persons who have not answered parking summonses in the Township. "Too many people have been ignoring parking fines," he commented, "so we'll bring them in and fine them five times the usual amount."

McCARTER COMEDIAN: Reg-

Eva Gabor in "Little Glass Clock," the comedy now at Mc-Carter Theatre.

News of the Theatres

McCARTER THEATRE

"Little Glass Clock" by Hugh Mills has started on its pre-
Broadway run here at McCarter Theatre, with performances nightly through Saturday, plus a closing day matinee.

Tickets for tonight, Thursday, and the Saturday matinee are the best bets at this point, since Saturday evening is SRO and Friday was expected to be close to the same. Reservations may be made by calling the box office, 5515.

Eva Gabor and Reginald Gar-diner head the cast for the romantic comedy set in the courtly world of Louis XV's France.
Lloyd Bochner, George Curzon and Bromwell Fletcher are featured members of the international cast. The designer is Cecil Beaton, Britain's royal photographer.

Coming Attraction. The McCar-ter is understood to be wrapping up arrangements for a visit here by the highly-acclaimed national dance company from Yugoslavia.
The date is expected to be Tuesday, April 10, with a late afternoon matinee and an evening performance planned.

The Yugoslavs captured the New York public and dance world when they bowed here in January. Word has it that despite demand they are unable to find a New York theatre for appearances in April so the Princeton performance will be about the last in this country.

The company is the top one among Yugoslavia's four. It is the Macedonian group and they present a program which goes from ritual dances of the most ancient times (preserved in villages over the centuries) to contemporary works. New York was particularly taken with their ancient costumes, instruments and the astonishing speed and precision of their dancing.

MURRAY THEATRE

Theatre Intime's production of Clifford Odets' drama "Clash by Night" remains on view at the Murray Theatre (on the University Campus) nightly through this Saturday, March 10. Curtain time is 8:30 and tickets may be reserved through the University Store (tel. 3333) and the Murray box office (tel. 3539, evenings).

Intime's production gets a recommendation, but of a qualified sort, since you have to contend with the fact that Mr. Odets' script is hardly first rate. It's very long, has some just plain bad lines and is, on occasion, awkward, despite its passages of dramatic drive.

The thing to see is how much life has been infused into the play by the cast and the director, Marton Goolde. Even though they run into difficulties, they have made a rather heavy "domestic tragedy" into something stirring at times by attempting to realize completely the potential intensity of the play.

Paul Schirm moves quite powerfully through the role of a tough inarticulate man who breaks up a home, while Jim Harder in his best moments in the latter half of the play conveys with feeling the pathetic, touching and appalling inadequacy of a physical man who cannot comprehend or handle except by final violence the threat to his world. Georgine Hall, creates in Mae, who falls willingly into adultery, a woman of inner strength.

Dave Sawyer and Diana Godol-phin establish a pleasant and warm atmosphere in their early scenes, but the playwright's rather odd handling of their roles later on seemed to cause them some problems in conveying meaning.

Among the other supporting members of the cast, Ed Pliska does an extremely effective piece of work as the aged Polish father, quite a challenge for an in-time actor and well taken by Mr.
Pliska. Bill Pierce's performance does not emerge until he finally becomes the spokesman for an awesome fascist urge.

Mr. Goolde's interpretation is strongly carried out. As noted, but this corner feels that an important direction in the script has been somewhat overlooked.
A helpful approach might have been to re-examine Mr. Odets'
"allegory." This was 1941 and the author was writing about more than adultery in drab places.

However badly handled and thin his allegory was, Mr. Odets was concerned with Fascist Germany and the inability of her spirit and will to resist animal-ity and the voices of violence.

Music in Princeton

UNIVERSITY CONCERTS

The Mozartean Orchestra, core of the famed Salzburg Festivals in Austria, will appear here Monday evening, March 12, to give the final concert in Series I of the Princeton University Concerts.

The event at McCarter Theatre will start at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are now on sale at the Princeton University Store (tel. 3333) and will be available at the McCarter box office Monday evening.

The brief tour of this country is an expression of gratitude to the musical organizations of America for their homage to Mozart, particularly in this 200th anniversary of the year of the great composer's birth.

The Mozartean is the outgrowth of a plan of Mozart's widow, who suggested the founding of a conservatory and an orchestra to keep the spirit of music of Mozart alive. All members of the group are graduates of the conservatory, including the principal conductor, Ernst Maessen-dorfer, and all have been trained in the manner set down by Mozart's son, who led the orchestra in its very first concert at the Salzburg Festival in 1942. More than 20 years after the debut, the orchestra made its first tour in Europe, with the verdict everywhere that it had no peer in presenting the great composer's works.

For the Princeton program, The Mozartean will have with it two soloists, Emmy Loose, soprano star of the Vienna State Opera, and Ralph Herbert, baritone, leading singer with the Metropolitan, San Francisco Opera and the City Center Opera.

The all-Mozart program here will include: the Overture to "Marriage of Figaro," Divertimento, K. 205; aria from "Così fan Tutti;" "Donne mie, la fate a tanti," (Ralph Herbert); aria, "Voi avete un cor fedele" (Emmy Loose); duet from "Marriage of Figaro;" "Cruel!" Per che finora" (Mme. Loose and Mr. Herbert); and after the intermission, the Symphony in A Major, K. 201 and the Prague German Dances, K. 509.

PROCTER HALL

One of the few things that sound well in the chapel-like contours of Procter Hall in the Graduate College is the clear, pure sound of unaccompanied vocal music written for this medium was presented there Sunday afternoon by the Princeton Madrigal Group under the direction of Elliot Forbes and the results were excellent.

The most difficult problem for an a cappella group is that of intonation. Without instruments to keep the pitch up to the mark, the members of opinion are likely to crop up among the singers. Singers tend naturally to alter the even, artificial tuning which we now employ for our instruments. Add to this the factor of human frailty and the difficulties

Mae is hardly a heroine seeking happiness, and the parts taken by Mr. Sawyer and Mrs. Godolphin become something like idealistic-realistic - innocent America, shocked by what they see.

Perhaps the specific allegory should be ignored for new productions of "Clash by Night," but its ultimate meaning should not.

The reservation should still not be taken as necessarily more important than the theatrical achievements of the production. As a whole, the acting sets a high standard and then, too, Jerry Rabourn's "raked stage" setting is both unusual and an excellent asset for the production.

COMMUNITY PLAYERS

Mary Gonzales has been cast in the role of Tulliana, the talkative wife in "The Anniversary," for the Princeton Community Players' production of the Chekov one-acter in the context of the New Jersey Little Theatre League. The production will be run on March 23 in Murray Theatre.

Mrs. Gonzales replaces Carlotta Sherwood, who played the role in

SHORT NOTES

Greek Designer to Speak. Andreas Nomikos, scene designer of the National Theatre of Greece, will give an informal talk and show slides of the modern theatre in Greece this coming Tuesday, March 13, at 8:30 p.m. His talk will be in the Theatre Collection Room, second floor, of Firestone Library. It is sponsored jointly by the Library and the Princeton Community Players.

Mr. Nomikos began his career as a stage and costume designer with an experimental stage group while Greece was still under German occupation. He designed plays by Shaw, O'Neill and Shakespeare, as well as contemporary Greek plays.

Last summer he was invited to join the Royal National Theatre of Athens as a staff designer. His first productions there were Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" and Giraudoux's "Ondine."

Mr. Nomikos is on a leave of absence, visiting the United States to study the newest stage, film and television techniques, as well as give a few lectures.

Miss Fine's Benefit. A film festival will be presented by the Alumni Association of Miss Fine's School for the benefit of the school this Friday, March 9, at 3:30 p.m. Tickets at 40c may be purchased at the door.

The program will include "The Black Patch," a color film about a little girl in the mountain ranges of Central Asia; "The Fish and the Fisherman," a color cartoon of a poem from Russian folk tales made in English; and "The Steadfast Tin Soldier," adapted from a Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale.

A half-hour cartoon parade of Walt Disney works will round out the benefit program.

SALZBURG CONDUCTOR:

Ernst Maessen-dorfer will lead the Mozartean Orchestra of Salzburg in concert Monday at the McCarter.

January but is now in the midst of a run as Juliet in the Shakespearewright's off-Broadway production of "Romeo and Juliet." Mrs. Gonzales has been seen in many roles here for the Community Players and Theatre Inc.

"The Anniversary" is directed by Lubomir Radovsky and other members of the cast include Lorin Zissman, Dorothy Thomas, James Hopkins and Kurt Weiser.

The Players will be competing in the first round of the contest against drama groups from Trenton, Pennington and Monmouth Junction. The winner will perform again against other district champions, with the League's annual trophy the eventual prize.

FILM CLASSIC SERIES

"My Little Chickadee" starring W. C. Fields and Mae West will be shown this Friday, March 9, at 7 and 9 p.m. in McCosh Hall 50 on the Princeton Campus. Tickets for the third program in the current Group Arts film series may be purchased at the door.

The great comic Fields matches wits and jokes with Miss West who plays a big-time entertainer who invades a small town in the far west and almost succeeds in taking it over. The film is considered one of Fields' finest efforts and also counts Miss West's famous line "Come up and see me sometime."

THE PLAYHOUSE

Bottom of the Bottle (March 8-10), tells of an escaping convict alcoholic (Van Johnson) who seeks the help of his successful lawyer-brother (Joseph Cotten). The conflict between them as well as between Cotten and his wife (Ruth Roman) is interesting melodrama, but not all of the time. CinemaScope and color in Arizona ranchlands.

The Benny Goodman Story. (March 11-17) lays claim to fame chiefly through its plentiful music as supplied by great Mr. Goodman in his top period music and musicians are all over the place with great appeal, while TV's Steve Allen makes a creditable Benny Goodman and Donna Reed is attractive as his wife. The story is hardly adequate, but the point is the music and the guest performers.

THE GARDEN

Children's Shows.—The Garden has scheduled a children's show for this Saturday morning, March 10, at 10:30 a.m. "Tarzan, the Ape Man" starring Johnny Weissmuller will be the feature, along with various cartoons. In case the youngsters don't know it, this one is the first of all the Tarzan movies.

On Saturday, March 17, the Garden will substitute a children's show for "Diabolique," "Broken Lance" starring Spencer Tracy and Richard Widmark will be the feature, with cartoons added, as usual.

East of Eden (March 8-10) makes a return here. It's a fine film, with great power and effect, highlighted, as everyone should know by "Diabolique," "Broken Lance" starring James Dean and Julie Harris. Raymond Massey, Burl Ives and others appear in the CinemaScope and color adaptation of John Steinbeck's novel.

Diabolique (March 15-17) is a real chiller of a mystery movie. The French filmmakers get in every bit of fascinating mystery, suspense and horror that they could. An excellent piece of work, but be sure you like the type. The good cast includes Simone Signoret, Vera Clouzot, Paul Meurisse and Charles Vanel. Good English subtitle.

Busy, Busy Courtroom. For two weeks running, Borough Magistrate Paul R. Chesbro was required to work overtime to get rid of numerous cases, traffic and criminal, on a pair of heavy calendars. Last week by continuing until 6 p.m., he managed to take care of all pressing matters. This Tuesday, as the Board of Health moved in for a special meeting at 5 p.m., he was obliged to call it quits with plenty of unfinished business to occupy his attention a week hence.

The most notable case of the two-week period involved hold-over charges against Philip L. Garland Jr., Lower Harrison street, and E. Anthony James, a Princeton University sophomore, who were arrested after a drunken, pistol-shooting auto spree in January. Mr. James appeared in person, but Mr. Garland was represented by his attorneys, since he is already serving 30 days in the Mercer County workhouse as a result of an earlier conviction on a different complaint in the same case.

Magistrate Chesbro, having considered the matter for a week, ruled that there was not sufficient evidence against the Princeton student to indicate that he was guilty of shooting out a street light, but said that circumstantial evidence showed "overwhelmingly" that Mr. Garland fired the 22 weapon. He dismissed a malicious destruction of property count against Mr. James, then imposed a 10-day work-house sentence on the other defendant for the same charge, the term to run concurrently with his present jail stint.

Regarding charges that Mr. Garland was operating his auto without a license or registration card during the spree, Borough attorney Henry M. Stratton moved for and was granted dismissal. "Princeton University has never entered into a statutory agreement with the Borough, contrary to my belief," the attorney explained. "So College Road West, where the two defendants were apprehended, could not be considered a public highway."

One other criminal case was handled by the magistrate, with Robert Colley, Mount Farm, fined $25 and given a 60-day suspended workhouse sentence for striking his wife. Otherwise, all criminal matters were postponed and Magistrate Chesbro had to content himself with the disposition of 25 traffic violations.

Princeton area motorists who paid fines last week included: Mrs. Helen M. Taft, Phinnsboro; Princeton Road; Simon Marcusson, 36 Marine Road, and Mrs. Shirley W. Gauges, 27 Clay Street, $15 each for speeding; Richard H. Levy, 35 Linden Lane, and Charles K. Agle, Elm Road, $10 each for speeding; Charles O. Snyder, 48 Jefferson Road, and Mrs. Rachel Train, R.D. 1, $15 each for careless driving; Mrs. Evelyn W. Germaine, 561 Stockton Street, $14 for red light; Walter Lowrie, 83 Stockton Street, $15 for failure to yield right-of-way; James H. Saunders, 207 Birch Avenue, $10 for ordinance violation; Miss Carolyn E. Bovey, Westminster Choir College, $15 for improper turn, and Robert K. Shultz, Princeton University, $8 for parking in a prohibited area. Princetonians fined this week were: Mrs. Alice T. Mueller, 158 Springdale Road; Anthony Ciralini, 25 Humbert Street, and Guertan C. Bischoff, 86 Stockton Street, $14 each for red light; Mrs. Gubelia M. Collini, The Great Road, and Andre Yokana, 86 Stockton Street, $12 each for "stop" sign, and Thelma H. Bradd, 220-A Marshall Street, $14 for ordinance violation.

Health Official Resigns. Convening in special session Tuesday afternoon, Princeton Borough's Board of Health agreed by unanimous vote to accept the resignation of William M. Riggs, 71 Palmer Square, the municipality's Sanitary Inspector. Mr. Riggs had served as a member of the Board of Health for over five years, taking the inspector's post in December, 1950.

The former Borough employee based his decision to resign on "personal reasons," stemming from his arrest in Trenton several weeks ago on a disorderly persons charge. Following several postponements of the case, Mr. Riggs was scheduled to appear "in closed session" before Judge Albert Cooper in Trenton's precinct 1 police court this Wednesday, too late for Town Topics to print the outcome.

Badge of Honor. Fellow we know hurried off to the conference on Woodrow Wilson last week held as part of the centennial of his birth. The occasion drew a lot of bigwigs, at least one of whom was impressed when our friend showed up wearing what appeared to be a press badge pinned to the lapel of his overcoat.

They read it together — with somewhat varying reactions. In his wife's handwriting, the "press badge" said: "Please clean this filthy coat thoroughly and sew on two buttons. One is in the pocket, the other is missing."

Avalon Decision Soon. Princeton's latest version of the old "eternal triangle" story, with the Community Players and the YMCA-YWCA Corporation vying for much-wooded Avalon, will reach its climax during the week ahead. A series of telltale gatherings, involving various groups, promises to resolve the matter once and for all — before the March 15 decision deadline set last week by the 'Y'.

Peter G. Cook, chairman of the Players' recently-formed "house-hunting" committee, said his group will meet this Thursday night to discuss "several good possibilities" regarding future plans for the dramatic organization. The Players' general membership has been invited to attend the session, Mr. Cook explained, and, if those present decide they like one or more of the "possibilities," results of the meeting will be taken quickly to the Players' board of trustees.

Indicating he expected his committee to be advancing an idea or two to the trustees by week's end, the chairman said he saw no reason why a meeting of the organization's membership could not be held early next week, shortly after the trustees have considered recommendations. "There seems to be every reason to think we will have something definite to tell the 'Y' before its deadline," Mr. Cook commented.

While dickering for the historic Van Dyke mansion, priced at $35,000, held the spotlight, there were other developments related to the still-expected transfer from Players to 'Y'. Of particular note, the Borough Engineer's Office began circulating comprehensive questionnaires, prepared without charge by Opinion Research, throughout downtown business offices. Results of the questionnaires — called a "traffic survey" — will show how many business persons have use for a proposed

Police Seek Policemen

To enlarge the force to the now-prescribed total of 24 men, Princeton Borough this week announced openlairs for two new patrolmen. Candidates interested in competing for the jobs were asked to file their applications with Borough Clerk Robert F. Mooney by March 21.

The clerk said all applicants must be between 21 and 30 years old, although military veterans who are over 30 may deduct their years in service to get below the maximum age. Starting salary is $3700, he noted, with a top wage of $4900 at the end of five years' duty.

new street between Bayard Lane and John Street — a link which can only be felt in the near-future offering IF the 'Y' acquires Avalon.

Dr. Howland Arraigned. The professional future of Dr. Jonathan Howland, prominent Princeton physician, rested this week with the Mercer County Grand Jury, which meets irregularly and may not consider the doctor's case for some time. Borough Magistrate Paul R. Chesebro delivered the matter to the higher judicial body following a brief arraignment here Monday afternoon.

Charged with obtaining narcotics unlawfully, the 37-year-old physician, through his attorney, Gordon Griffin, waived preliminary hearing rights during his appearance before Magistrate Chesebro. The magistrate released the defendant on a continuance of his $2,500 bail, lowered from $5,000 after an earlier hearing.

Show's Models Chosen. With reservations for the season's first fashion show reportedly coming in well, Mrs. Stanmore V. Wilson, chairman of the event, this week announced the names of seven women who will model at the show. Included are Mrs. C. Burrage Armour, Miss Peggy Dodson, Mrs. John Gulick, Mrs. C. R. Moore, Mrs. Donald L. Wert and Mrs. James J. Whelan, all of Princeton, and Mrs. Robert E. Casey of Bound Brook.

Scheduled for 3:30 p.m. March 16 at Miss Fine's School and sponsored by Rosette Pennington, which is handling reservations at its store in the Princeton Shopping Center, the show will aid in raising funds for production of the annual Hospital Fete. Mrs. H. A. Colton Jr. will serve as commentator for introduction of the models and description of their fashions.

Meanwhile, in further preparation for the Fete, to be held June 2, members of the sponsoring Women's Auxiliary of Princeton Hospital will start collecting articles Monday for their popular Collectors' Auction, a yearly Fete feature. They have already sent out advance word for Princeton housewives to search their attics for heirlooms and worth while objects for the event.

Mrs. John H. Wallace Jr. and Mrs. Moore Gates will act as co-chairman of a 40-women solicitations committee, while Mrs. Richard G. Macgill will serve as chairman of the actual pick-up committee. The Collectors' Auction will be supervised by Lester M. Slatoff, veteran Trenton auctioneer.

Mrs. Eleanor Reed McCord, 92, died February 28 in Boston, Mass., after a brief illness. She was the widow of Joseph A. McCord.

While a resident of this community 30 years ago, she served as president of the Present Day Club. Mrs. McCord, who was particularly active in Red Cross work and in the League of Women Voters, campaigned in the '20s for the repeal of Prohibition.

She had lived in Cambridge, Mass., since 1934 with her son, David T. W. McCord, executive secretary of the Harvard Fund Council. The funeral was held in Cambridge.

Thomas P. Morrell, 81, of 66 East Prospect Street, Hopewell, died March 3 in McKinley Hospital, Trenton. A retired dairy farmer he had been a resident of Hopewell for many years.

Husband of the late Anna Mae Wyckoff Morrell, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Leon Drake of Hopewell. The service was held at a Hopewell funeral home with interment in Highland Cemetery.

E. Baldwin Smith, 67, of 211 Prospect Avenue, died March 7 in Princeton Hospital after a brief illness. A faculty member at the University since 1915, he was Howard Crosby Butler Professor of the History of Architecture. Born in Topsham, Me., Prof. Smith was a graduate of Bowdoin College. He served overseas during the first World War, winning the Purple Heart.

Former chairman of the Department of Art and Archaeology, he had written widely in his field, contributing to professional journals in architecture and fine arts. At Princeton, he had served on the faculty committee which drafted the famed "four-course" plan, effecting a major revision in the University's academic policy. He was also the first chairman of the Program in the Humanities.

Prof. Smith is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Hough Smith; two sons, Dr. Lacey B. Smith, a faculty member at Northwestern University, and Nathaniel, a junior at Princeton; and two daughters, Mrs. Richard G. Stoner of State College, Pa., and Susan of Princeton.

Funeral arrangements were being completed.

Princeton Chapter of the American Red Cross is now carrying on its annual fund drive to meet the needs of services provided by the chapter, as well as those of the national organization, whose resources were strained by a series of floods and other disasters in this country.

The goal of the Princeton chapter is $38,945. Division commanders for solicitation are Mrs. W. C. Carpenter, Mrs. Peter B. Fuinman, Mrs. John Chubert, Philip Dushness, Mrs. John Claghorn and Mrs. T. Morgan Harris. District captains include:

Bennett Bridge Champion, Robert W. Bennett of 77 Stanwood Drive last week won the New Jersey Masters' Individual Contract Bridge Tournament. Open to those with more than 50 Masters' points, the event drew 52 entries.

Each contestant played with every other entrant in the tournament twice, giving him a total of 102 boards. As the champion Mr.

LOOKING AHEAD: Mrs. Marie Ball, a well-known 35-year resident of Princeton, poses from her front porch at 129 John Street, to the spot directly across the street where a proposed new Borough artery may one day soon link John with Bayard Lane. With talk of the connecting street back in the news due to current YMCA-Community Players negotiations over Avalon, Mrs. Ball naturally is interested in what lies ahead. Here she gives her opinion, along with several other Princetonians, in answering Question of the Week for Town Topics. For their thoughts on the subject, read below. (Richards Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: How do you feel about the proposed Bayard Lane-John Street link on YMCA property, a stone's throw from your home?

Location: Homes at both ends are to the immediate south of the latest proposed "parallel artery."

Rev. William T. Parker, pastor of the First Baptist Church, 30 Green Street: "I hate to see people along Jackson lose their homes, but it might be a blessing in disguise. Some of those houses practically in the heart of Princeton—are a disgrace to the town. Most of the people are renting, so it wouldn't be like losing their personal property. We've long felt the need for a thorough street here—maybe two of them—and I think it's a good idea. But, to extend the street eastward and keep from running it right through our church, a terrible curve would be required—I can't see that."

Mrs. Richard L. Hilliard, housewife, 5 Greenholm: "I think it is the solution to many problems, as it represents a continuous link with an already existing street, Hodge Road. If the once-proposed Greenholm route were used, there would be a worse traffic jam than ever. I realize a link is needed badly—and it must be built soon because the traffic situation is going to grow worse very quickly."

Mrs. Marie Ball, stone owner, 129 John Street: "I've heard so many rumors and I've heard them for so long that it's difficult to say. I don't have a car, so the traffic doesn't bother me. I know I wouldn't like to see anyone forced out of his home. Some of the people have lived in this neighborhood as long as I have—35 years—and I know I'd hate to have to move. Where would I move to?"

I. Stanley Warren, real estate dealer and engineer, 52 Bayard Lane: "I object to the suggestion for the same reason used in arguing a Greenholm link between John and Bayard. It would break down the character of the neighborhood and devalue properties. It would also turn beautiful Hodge Road into a traffic mess and cross-traffic on Bayard would create an awful hazard. Not only that, but can you imagine the difficulties at the other end? We can't get any more cars now due to the terrific truck noise, so I have written to Governor Meyner urging a Princeton bypass and he has forwarded my letter to the State Highway Department. If we could get rid of the highway

Street Status Quo

For seemingly countless years, ever-growing Princeton has argued the pros and cons of a new route connecting John Street with Bayard Lane, designed to lessen the traffic load along Nassau Street. A great controversy grew out of the idea of developing such a link through Greenholm, which another suggestion that Hulfish Street be extended westward through the Palmer estate received little enthusiastic backing.

The latest proposed route would connect John and Bayard just south of the YMCA building on John, or just north of the Greenholm area. Land for the whole project will be available for the Borough to utilize, if the "Y" can obtain Avalon—an "it" which should be answered by March 15. While the Community Players decide the fate of their home and urban redevelopers consider extension of the link to meet Wiggins Street in Jackson Street, Borough Council has the matter tabled.

With action influencing the link expected in the near future, Town Topics went to homes surrounding the land to ask Question of the Week, based on the newest route suggestion. Answers to Question will be found on this page.

traffic, there would be no real need for a connecting street.

Mrs. Katharine Moore, nurse's aide at Princeton Hospital, Trenton: "Until three weeks ago, I lived on Jackson Street ever since moving to New Jersey and I must admit, so far as the town is concerned, the link on 'Y' property would be a big help. But, for the residents of Jackson Street, it would be bad. They don't have much money and they know how tough it would be to find a new place to live, so they want to remain where they are, untouched. Princeton's planners should build a project for these people first, then tear down the houses to put the street through."

Mrs. Margheretta H. Link, housewife, 7 Chambers Terrace: "I was all for the Greenholm route—I was willing to be inconvenienced for the good of the whole town—and I'm all for the new route, if it means something good for Princeton. You can't hold back progress of course. I don't think the new proposal connects of unaccompanied singing become apparent.

The extent to which these problems were solved, and solved in 20th century as well as 16th century music, was admirable. No professionals, these people sing for the fun of it and succeed in communicating this, maintaining all the while a high standard of technical competence. There were a few doubtful pitches on Sunday, particularly when more than four-part singing was required. But, far more important was the number of right notes and the spirit with which all the notes were sung.

The first half of the program was devoted to "chansons", the French cousin of the madrigal. Three charming examples by Josquin Des Pres urged us to both weep and to "grieve no more". Then followed a number of Rilke settings: six by Paul Hindemith and five by Darius Milhaud. The latter were pretty but slight; the Hindemith had more substance and even moments of real beauty. But all the settings seemed to miss the real profundity of these poems, so slight and charming on the surface, yet so full of melancholy and ecstasy underneath.

It is always hard to judge the performances of unfamiliar music but these seemed excellent. The Hindemith songs were repeated; an excellent idea with a modern piece when time considerations do not preclude it.

The entire last part of the program was devoted to madrigals by John Wilbye, one of that marvellous generation of Elizabethan composers. As a master, Wilbye ranks somewhat below Gibbons and Byrd but in his own genre, the pastoral love madrigal, he is peerless. The nymphs trip and the rejected lovers plead for pity but never with undue exaggeration. The conventions are accepted with naturalness and grace and the whole is drawn with a fine hand. In a musical way, these works were perhaps the most difficult. But Sunday's performance caught a good measure of their charm.

The singers who did such a creditable job were Anne Cantor and Eleanor Holly, sopranos; Anne Epstein and Kathleen Forbes, altos; Thomas Osborn and Russell Peck, tenors; and David Epstein, Peter Roubesh and Carl Yordy, basses.

Chamber Music Concert. The Friends of Music at Princeton will present a special concert of chamber music in Murray Theatre on the University Campus this Sunday, March 11, at 3:30 p.m. The concert, open to the public without charge, will accent new works in various styles and instrumental combinations by students in the graduate department of music at Princeton, performed by artists from New York and Princeton.

Mrs. Helen Teschner Tas, violinist, and Arthur Satz, piano, will play two works, opening with Schubert's Duo in A major and also performing a set of variations by Michael Sahl. Mrs. Tas, a concert soloist and teacher, is now a resident of Princeton, while Mr. Satz is a student of piano and music history at the University.

The other large work on the program is a string quartet by Eric Salzman. It will be performed by the Festival String Quartet, whose members are active in New York concert life. They are Paul Gershman, first violin; Avram Weiss, second violin; Leon Frangut, viola, and David Freed, cello.

Three songs by Christopher Montgomery will be sung by Marianne Weltman, soprano, who was widely heralded for her performances at the Brandeis Music Festival last summer. The songs are translated texts by the Chinese poet Li-Po. David Lewin of the graduate music department will be Miss Weltman's accompanist.

The other work on the program is in the most unusual medium. It is a Suite for Solo Clarinet by Malcolm Peyton. A native Princetonian, Mr. Peyton's recent Two Pieces for String Orchestra were performed by the Princeton Symphony this fall. The performer Sunday will be clarinetist James Wood, who is a student at Harvard University.

Sunday's concert will be the first in a series of three chamber music programs scheduled by the Friends of Music in Murray Theatre. Future concerts featuring the works of student and faculty composers are planned for April 15 and May 20.

MUSIC NOTES

Joint Glee Club Concert. The Glee Club of Miss Fine's School and the Princeton University Freshman Glee Club will join for a concert this Friday, March 9, at 8:15 in Alexander Hall. The concert will be sponsored by the Friends of Music and open to the public without charge.

Works to be sung jointly are Mozart's "Ave Verum Corpus" and four "Liedeslieder" by Brahms. The Miss Fine's group, under Nancy Campbell, will sing a group of German works including Vierdanek's "Mein Herz ist bereit," a setting of Psalm 57 for chorus, two flutes and continuo. The Miss Fine's madrigal group will also perform.

Under the direction of Horace Allen, the Freshman Glee Club will sing Randall Thompson's chorus "The Last Words of David"; two songs for men's chorus by Schubert, "Wider Spruch" and "Nachtell," and some folk songs arranged by Marshall Bartholomew, Work and Holst.

University Orchestra Concert. The Princeton University Orchestra under the direction of Nicholas Harsanyi will perform this Saturday, March 10, at 8:30 p.m. in Alexander Hall. The concert is sponsored by the Friends of Music and will be open to the public without charge.

The program will open with the "Amaryllis Suite" by Handel as arranged for modern orchestra by Sir Thomas Beecham. The highlight will be Chopin's Concerto No. 1 in E minor, Opus 11, for piano and orchestra, with Allen Balsbaugh '56 as soloist. The concert overture to Mozart's opera "The Abduction from the Seraglio" will close the evening.

weather come in polished cotton, striped with cognac and black or black and olive with plain, shiny brass buttons. ($11.95 in the seven-twelve range). Another striped jacket is shades of blue and rust.

Overalls in size one—about the size of a hip pocket. These are bibbed carpenter's overalls with a pocket for everything: a ruler pocket at the back of the leg, two slant pockets at the sides, big ones on each hip, and a row of them across the bib with one in the middle for a pencil (crayon?), and capacious ones on each side for all those nails. Sizes go up to six, price is $3.50.

Over where the big boys buy, the Junior Shop has a stirring red wool sport jacket in basket-weave with brass-band buttons. Sizes 14-20. The usual tweed jackets are striped this spring, in greens and browns, and the shop has any combination you can imagine.

Tropical worsted suits come in a mixture of rayon and dacron—these are new to the shop this year. Colors already in a navy and brown with charcoal on the way.

weight fabrics are the featured players at the English Shop this spring. poplin of dacron and cotton at $39.50 is one example. It has a jacket with hook vent, lap seems, and natural shoulders. Comes in that olive green, tan, and-in little white-grey.

A tropical worsted of dacron and wool comes in a new shade called "burnt grass" that is lighter than an olive green, and quite a welcome addition to the scene, in our opinion. (This suit comes in navy, too, and the price is $68.50 - $85.)

Viscose rayon and cotton are paired in a slub weave suit that comes in tan or grey. A faint white vein runs through the weave for a light touch. This suit is $38.50. You'll notice the presence of cotton or wool with all these synthetic fabrics. Without them, dacron would be impossibly hot and difficult to tailor, rayon would be without body. Cotton makes the fabric porous and amenable to tailoring.

Hand-woven Shetland sports jackets have tie-print linings that make a pleasing contrast to the rough texture of the wool. There are 200 of these jackets on the English Shop racks, and more are coming. We saw a houndstooth in teal green and black. Lots of stripes, overplaids by the clan-full, and the usual tweedy mixtures. A light grey stirred with pale blue makes a spring-like combination.

Walking shorts will be coming out for a stroll soon. Here is a pair in dacron and wool, charcoal or light grey at $14.50. Dacron and cotton seerock comes in grey, tan, or blue. Striped shorts are in wine and grey, or green and black. They are all cotton and washable at $8.50.

Cotton Madras is beginning to come in. We saw a pair of shorts in shades of pink and red, and a quiet Glen plaid that was probably horrified at the whole idea.

PUT ON YOUR DANCING SHOES: Everyone seems to have done just that—everyone except No. 2 from the right in the front row—and all 18 girls appear ready for their big performance, "Dance Fantasy," to be presented at 7:45 p.m. March 18 in the Princeton High School auditorium. The elaborate program, featuring 17 different numbers, will be the eighth-season recital offering of the Peggy Longstreth Beyer School of Dance, with proceeds earmarked for the YMCA-YWCA building fund. Troupers in the photo are (front row, left to right) Linnie McLean, Dianne Tyler, Danya Oberman, Amy Schoch, Peggy Beyer, Barbara Witter, Kathy Peterson, Lita Ely, Sharon Lancaster, Aflane Yokana, Joanne Feldman and Faron Daub; and (back row, left to right) Leslie Worden, Beatrice Bilheimer, Marcy Carroll, Sonia Plautis, Eileen Lambertus, Sonia Dill, Susan Williams and Mrs. Peggy L. Beyer, instructress. For additional credits, see Topics of the Town.

Dance Recital Next Week. Some 120-plus Princeton youngsters, ranging from 3½ to 15 in age, will exhibit their ballroom, ballet, tap and gymnastic skills in a benefit dance recital at 7:45 p.m. March 18 in Princeton High School's auditorium. The program will be the annual presentation of the Peggy Longstreth Beyer School of Dance, now in its eighth season.

With staging and choreography under the supervision of Mrs. Beyer, a native Princetonian who once taught with Fred Astaire Studios, the recital will raise funds to benefit the YMCA-YWCA building fund. Contributions at the door will amount to $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

The gymnastics portion of the program will be staged by Richard Swinnerton, Princeton University physical education instructor who devotes part-time to the dance school, while costumes for the production, entitled "Dance Fantasy," will be designed and created by Mrs. Mary S. Williams. Other production participants: Mrs. Helen M. Lambertus, set and posters; Charles A. Williams, lighting and props; and Mrs. Charlotte Daub, publicity.

Mrs. Beyer will be assisted through the recital by interested parents, including these members of the door committee: Mr. and Mrs. George N. Batrie, Mr. and Mrs. H. Gordon Dyke and Donald Rugg. Serving as ushers will be Dianne Barrie, Georgia Griffin, Phyllis Carroll, Mary Peterson, Donald Horvath and Kevin Steechini.

Governor on Program. To underscore the state's interest in the problems of the mentally ill, Governor Robert E. Meyner will present an introductory address as a part of the March 19 appearance here of famed psychiatrist Dr. William C. Menninger. The latter's lecture, "Can the Mentally Ill Be Cured?," will be given at 8:30 p.m. on the Monday date in McCarter Theatre.

Also on the program, to be sponsored under the auspices of the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute, will be Dr. Richard S. Garber, superintendent of the institute. He will preside over the proceedings.

Tickets for Dr. Menninger's lecture, all priced at $1.75, went on sale this week at the University Store, and will be allocated as applications are received. There will be no reserved seats, but there will be a public address system.

In last week's issue, Town Topics inadvertently published the starting time for Dr. Menninger's address as 7:45 p.m. March 19. The date was correct, but the Kansas mental health leader will speak at 8:30 p.m. instead of the earlier hour.

Bottle Saga Continued. When 8-year-old Jay Breese, 65 Olden Avenue, dropped a bottled note into the Atlantic Ocean back in December, 1954, he was dubious about receiving an answer to his precariously dispatched, scribbled message. He did receive a response, however, as featured in Town Topics last November, and now his sea adventure has developed even further.

Just recently, young Jay was the recipient of two additional letters from the beechcombing fisherman who found his original note, Erasmus A. D. Cumming of the Shetland Islands, northeast of Scotland. Then, the interesting, news-filled letters were followed by a fine winter gift—a pullover Shetland wool sweater, hand-knitted by Mrs. Cumming's wife with raw material provided by the Island's shepherders.

Since the Scotch fisherman appears to be a regular correspondent, perhaps a life-long friend, Jay has started a fast-growing scrapbook to contain the results of his innocent "bottle letter."

Space is being saved for his saga's story that have appeared in national papers and magazines in Scotland, which Mr. Cumming has promised to send along.

To Discuss Water Problem. Problems of control, conservation and development of the state water supply will be the basis for discussion in the League of Women Voters' March meetings on the theme "Water for New Jersey."

The league will review proposals for conserving the New Jersey water supply, particularly the Round Valley, Chimney Rock, Wharton Tract and Delaware and Wallpack Bend projects. The state is considered to have ample water resources for all foreseeable future needs, provided long-range conservation measures are taken immediately.

The following meetings are scheduled: Monday, 8:15 p.m., Mrs. Alexander Mc Bride, 137 Loomis Court; Tuesday, 8:15 p.m., Mrs. Frederick Dunn, 25 Mercer Street; Wednesday, 10 a.m., Mrs. —Continued on Page 16

OATH OF OFFICE: Mercer County Judge Clifton C. Bennett (left), a Princeton resident, appeared in Municipal Court here last week to swear in three juvenile referees for the Princeton area. He gave the oath of office to (left to right) Louis R. Gerber, Howard W. Stepp and Paul R. Chesbro, with Mrs. Theresa S. Thomas, Municipal Court Clerk, holding the Bible. Mr. Stepp, who has held the job alone for several years, will continue to supervise all juvenile matters, but now will have help when he is out of town or overloaded with cases and also will have experienced advisers to sit with him in judgment of difficult problems. Township Magistrate Gerber will concentrate on cases developing within his jurisdiction, while Borough Magistrate Chesbro will do the same. Following the above ceremony, Judge Bennett took oaths from Sergeant Peter J. McCrohan and Patrolman Richard Steiner, who will serve the Borough and Township, respectively, as juvenile officers. as well with Jackson and Wiggins Streets as Greenholm, but Greenholm seems to be past history. If the 'Y' gets Avalon, the new route should go through without a hitch —it's a real necessity.

Mrs. Lorene P. Melchor, housewife, 28 Green Street: There's lots of talk about a new 'link,' as always, and it sounds like a good idea to help traffic, especially to take trucks off the little streets in this area. However, I can't believe they'd cut a route through by the 'Y' without raising some houses around here, and that would result in suffering for some home-owners. They don't earn enough money to get up and move.

Mrs. Albridge C. Smith, 34, 62 Hodge Road, housewife: An east-west route to relieve traffic congestion on Nassau Street is a must for Princeton, and I hope the Planning Board will take action quickly. Difficulty admittedly exists at John Street, where the First Baptist Church is, but a solution to this aspect of the problem can be found. Once the street is created, of course, it will be absolutely essential to have a traffic light installed at the intersection of Bayard Lane and Hodge Road.

For a Better Future. Long-range, well-considered regional planning has been proposed for the Stony Brook-Millstone watersheds' area, with Carnegie Lake (and therefore Princeton) in the middle of its 300 square miles. Significantly, proponents of the plan urged immediate attention, despite its over-the-years concept.

Called by the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association in cooperation with Rutgers University's Division of Special Services and sponsored by RCA, the planning session was attended by 70-plus representatives from governmental and planning boards of boroughs, townships and counties lying within the watersheds along with representatives from Princeton and Rutgers Universities, various state departments and other interested individuals.

Paul Vnn Wegen of Pennington, president of the association, keyed the program after explaining that his "voluntary civic organization" was formed, in 1951, due to concern over the rapidly with which soil, water, forest and wildlife resources were diminishing in the region. "These original objectives are as important now as in 1951 when the association was formally organized," he observed, "but, as a result of our five years' experience and evidences of unprecedented growth in this area, we now realize it is necessary to include another broad objective in our ultimate goal. We have come to realize the importance of planning for wise land use, whether it be farm land or residential, industrial or recreational."

The president called attention to the fact that "establishment of each of these areas in proper relationship" with the other three can only be realized "by planning for them before they are developed." True, he admitted, "planning for this expansion is being done by individual communities and counties, but an overall plan for the whole region is lacking. Planning on a piecemeal basis is not as effective as on a regional one."

Special Rutgers Study. Dr. Edward Wilkens of Rutgers, an enthusiastic supporter of the association, informed the luncheon audience of an ambitious one-year search of the watersheds' area being undertaken by his university's Division of Special Services. During the coming year, he said, members of the division will test problems, through small samplings, all over the area, finally preparing a report which will be available for use by long-range regional planners.

Guy Larcom, chief of New Jersey's Division of Planning, said he was "excited at the new approach," including the Rutgers study, emphasizing the need for more regional thinking in developing for the future of the state. He pointed out that the endeavor here should give municipalities a new look into many of their concerns and, on that basis, pledged state support of the project.

Announcing that the association intends to move full steam (as well as full stream) ahead, whether federal aid funds are forthcoming or not (and the outlook is favorable), Herbert H. Smith, of Community Planning Associates, Princeton, stressed that the association hopes for a better future through a non-polltical, non-partisan movement. And there will be action now, he concluded, "for, as surely as planning for this region's development is neglected, inadequate housing, water shortages, problems of pollution and undue traffic congestion will follow."

Dr. Douglas Ewing of the host RCA organization drew the luncheon's biggest gasp when he noted, in passing, that 70% of the products sold by RCA today were not on the market 10 years ago. "We realize the importance of planning and research," he said, thus explaining RCA's interest in the area surrounding its Princeton laboratories.

MS Council Planned. The first forum discussion of multiple sclerosis in this area is being planned for Monday with Dr. Frederick L. Stone, director of the medical and scientific department of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, as principal speaker. The MS Council will be held at 8 p.m. at Lawrence Junior High on the Princeton Pike.

Dr. Stone, who has the top responsibility in the nation for research into the neurological disease, will be introduced by Charles R. Howell, former U. S. Senator and now state commissioner of banking. A film strip on what is being done for patients, a report on prevalence of MS cases in Mercer County, and presentation of the 1956 slate of directors are also planned.

James A. Arnold Jr., treasurer of the Central Jersey Chapter, and Mrs. Albert Tucker are making program arrangements. In Princeton, Mrs. Thomas C. Roberts is chairman of the committee urging the attendance of educational and health officials as well as the general public.

English Education Lecture. Benjamin S. Morris, director of the National Foundation for Educational Research in England and Wales, will give a public lecture on "Some Major Problems Facing English Education Today" this Thursday, March 8, at 8 p.m. in 46 McCosh Hall.

While in Princeton, Mr. Morris will participate in seminars with the research staff of Educational Testing Service. He will also study ETS methods and inspect the Princeton school system.

YM Father and Son Trip. Next on the YMCA's schedule of Father and Son trips is a visit to the United Nations building in New York on March 10. Plans are being made to follow the UN trip and lunch with an excursion through an ocean liner.

Days on the trip must be between 7 and 17 and accompanied by their father. Some YM members have volunteered to act as father for a day if necessary. Registration must be made by Wednesday, March 7.

Last weekend's trip to McGuire Air Force Base under the charge of the Air Force proved a great success. Among the points of interest were a briefing, the air terminal, a trip through a DC-7, visits to operations and weather, lunch in the mess hall, a trip to a fighter squadron and a tour of the entire base.

Scout Officials Plan Dinner. A "Relationships Dinner" to bring together heads of the various church and civic groups in the area and acquaint them with the operation of the Scout movement is planned by the Stony Brook District, Boy Scouts of America, March 13 at the Princeton Inn.

A representative from the BSA national headquarters will describe the organization and aims of the scouting movement, and members of the Stony Brook committee will discuss district activities. The communities comprising the Stony Brook District are Allentown, Blawenburg, Cranbury, Hightstown, Hopewell, Pennington, Princeton, Titusville and Windsor. L. Bamberger and Com-

Win Contest First Prizes. Miss Marlon B. Baker and Miss Kate Szklal, Princeton girls studying at Goucher College, have received first place honors in a political cartoon and song contest sponsored by the college's Field Politics Center.

Miss Baker, a sophomore at Goucher and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harland F. Baker, 40 North Stanworth Drive, won $20 for her cartoon depicting President Eisenhower's reticence to reveal his decision on whether he will run for re-election. A member of the senior class, Miss Szklal, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Szklal, 23 Laurel Road, received a similar award for her campaign song entitled, "Eisenhower, Please Decide."

Wins Scholarship to Mexico. Miss Anita Hoagland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon P. Hoagland, 49 Clay Street, and a senior at Beaver College, will begin her studies at the University of Mexico March 7 after receiving a scholarship for 10 months study through the Institute of International Education.

Miss Hoagland's scholarship is one of 16 grants offered United States students by the Mexican Government through the Mexico-United States Commission on Cultural Cooperation. She will study literature, philosophy, Mexican history and archeology, and upon completion of 12 credits Miss Hoagland will receive her bachelor of arts degree from Beaver College.

Orthodontics His Specialty. Arnold J. Hirsch, D.D.S. who is specializing in the practice of orthodontics, this week opened a new office at 352 Nassau Street. Until the Princeton move, he was engaged in a successful practice in the same specialty in New York City.

A native of Newark and an alumnus of Asbury Park High School, Dr. Hirsch graduated from the United States Naval Academy and spent five years on active duty with the Navy during which time he earned his wings as a naval aviator. Following his military stint, he graduated from the School of Dentistry at the University of Pennsylvania and later completed post-graduate studies in orthodontics at Columbia University.

The dentist's specialty deals with straightening or correcting the alignment of teeth. This often-times involves correction of the bite in conjunction with the general practitioner's work.

Check Results With Junior. Harried Princetonians facing the annual problem of figuring their income tax returns during the next month or so might do well to double-check final figures with their children before heading for the nearest mailbox. That isn't the direct advice of Chris L. Gross, district director of internal revenue, but it certainly can be deduced from the latest official Odd Race Nears an End. If the Ivy basketball race that will come to an end this Saturday has taken a number of totally unexpected turns, some of which broke against Princeton and knocked it out of contention with two games left to play, consolation can be gained in these parts from the knowledge that wholly illogical developments are a rule rather than the exception. A year from now, they may work for the Tigers.

The point is that Dartmouth won the 1956 title last weekend with a team that is composed almost entirely of juniors and sophomores, and as such should be an odds-on favorite to repeat next season. The Indians had to go in to double overtime to trim Brown at Providence but eventually prevailed, 50 to 70, thereby wrapping up the championship a week before the season ended. Only Captain Toby Julian is a senior, and only two others on the squad are in their final year.

The Green lost its first three, won its next ten and took the laurels when once-favored Columbia was losing to Penn on the Lions' own court. That saddled every team in the circuit with at least five defeats, and it is possible that they will all have been beaten six times or more by Saturday night. In any event, a 9-and-5 figure is a virtual certainty to be good enough for runner-up honors unconcerned. In contrast to the fourth-place berth that similar figures earned for Dartmouth a year ago.

The three-way battle that was shaping up among Columbia, Princeton and Dartmouth began to disintegrate the moment the Lions' high-scoring star, Chet Forte, was declared ineligible for the balance of the season. The pace-setting New Yorkers promptly lost to Brown at Providence, a fate that had befallen Princeton just six days earlier when the Tigers went there 24 hours after a captain John DeVoe had torn a knee ligament at Cambridge.

That was the beginning of the crazy sequence of events working for Dartmouth, which became good enough to take full advantage of the developments by turning back all comers. Incidentally, the Green pinned a gaudy feather in the Ivy League's cap by whipping powerful Holy Cross, an early NCAA selection from the New England District.

The manner in which the teams seeking to catch the Indians knocked each other off may be without precedent in the league's half-century, primarily because so many of them lost at home. For example, Penn topped Cornell at Ithaca but was a one-sided victim of the Red on its own basketball floor last Friday. The Quakers in turn were set back by Columbia in Philadelphia but edged them Saturday night at New York in a two-point thriller.

Cornell was a major upset victim of last-place Harvard in a mid-December game at Ithaca, later gaining easy revenge at Cambridge. Princeton topped Yale in the historic five-overtime battle at New Haven, but could not come close to the Blue four days later in Dillon Gym. Any one of five teams might have caught Dartmouth by putting more pressure on the Green with a consistent streak of its own.

Months away from the start of the 1957 season, it looks like a repeat for the Indians, who have come back to the top after a ten-year absence. What Princeton's chances are will depend entirely on the degree to which the Orange and Black can find at least one player who can provide the spark that went out this season when John DeVoe missed six games with his knee injury.

Tiger Captain Returns. The strongest sort of proof of what DeVoe's absence meant to the team was furnished with his return Saturday night, when he played a full 40 minutes against Cornell. The drive and determination he provided was translated to the entire starting quintet, which shook off its lethargy and indecisiveness to give one of its best performances of the season.

A 50-per shooting average was blended with sound defensive work during the first half, the 44-26 score at the intermission virtually clinching the game for the Tigers. Cornell rallied strongly in the final minutes (after trailing by 21 points with 12 minutes left) but DeVoe's court direction kept the pressure from becoming too great. It was an 80 to 76 final.

DeVoe dropped in 30 points, 15 in each half, to come within two of tying the court record. Dick its basketball team, was the losers' high man with 25, followed by Chuck Rolles with 20—after a first half in which Fred Perkins parried the Cornell record holder to 4.

The visitors, who had overcome an eight-point lead on their own court to trim Princeton 63, earlier in the week, outscored the Tigers in the final half of the second game, 50 to 36. Their big deficit at the intermission was, however, more than they could overcome.

Two Games Against Penn. Following its midweek game with Columbia, the Orange and Black concluded its season with Penn Saturday night in the Pleistara. The Quakers made a shambles of the season with a 3-1 record in mid-February, but with DeVoe on hand, the Tigers may gain revenge.

Basketball fans who want a preview of next year can get their final look at the Princeton freshmen back at 3 o'clock afternoon. The Tiger cubs, who went into Wednesday's Columbia game with a 9-0 mark, have already trimmed their weekend opponent, Pennsylvania's freshmen, by better than 20 points in Philadelphia.

Hockey Team Wins Two. Princeton's hockey team, which concluded its season Wednesday night at Cambridge in a game played against Harvard after this issue had gone to press, won a pair last week to be sure of at least a third-place tie with Brown. The Rhode Island sextet was turned back, 4-2, averaging a previous loss by a similar margin at Providence, and Dartmouth was then edged in overtime, 5-4.

The performance against the Bruins was considerably the better of the two, the Tigers battling hard and controlling the game all the way. Harry Rulon-Miller, the team's leading scorer, and Charlie Pratt each came up with a pair of tallies as the victors took a 3-0 lead, fell back to 3-2 but won without undue difficulty.

Dartmouth, winner of only five in 22 games this season, led the Princetonians at the end of each of the first two periods as the Tigers' normally sharp attack spluttered fitfully. It caught fire in the first two minutes of the final frame, when Pratt and Charlie Hauer scored within 19 seconds of each other. Five minutes later, Roger Boocock racked up what appeared to be the final clincher when he picked up a loose puck and beat goalie John Scully while Princeton was a man short.

However, the Indians kept battling away and at 15:16 had earned a 4-4 tie that necessitated an extra period. Captain George Scragg won the game at 1:37 of the sudden-death session with a quick thrust fired as he came across the mouth of the cage some 15 feet out.

The victory gave the Tigers a 12-8 mark on the season, representing their best win-loss record since Hank Dethlefs' team won the Ivy championship in 1953.

Ivy for the Wrestlers. The most notable conquest of the week fell to the credit of Jimmy Reed's wrestlers, who walked off with the Ivy championship on a basis of their 14-13 conquest of Cornell. Based on comparative scores against other opponents—a measuring stick that is more likely to be accurate in wrestling than in most other sports—the Ithacans were heavily favored.

Princeton lost the first two bouts, one of them by a fall, to go down 8-0 soon after the match opened. However, euphemores Art Tebbutt and Bill Fortenbaugh won to make it 8-6. Ed Noll and Pete Alexander added five points with a decision and a draw while the Ithacans were increasing their total in like fashion, making it 13-11 with the heavyweight bout to go.

Jack Hunt won a decision in that event by a narrow 2-1 margin, giving the Tigers the match and the Ivy championship. They also beat Brown, Columbia, Harvard and Pennsylvania, tying Yale to go undefeated in the league's first year. In sharp contrast, last season was no better than 2-4-1.

In other weekend sports, Yale's swim event won their 1424 meet over an 11-year period by winning Princeton, 58-26. The Elis do not, however, schedule Big Ten teams, which could break that streak in short order. Last Thursday, Columbia won the Ivy fencing title with a 14-13 victory over the previously unbeaten Princetonians, scored in overtime.

Successful Season Ended. The ambitious Junior division forces of the Princeton Hockey Club, an unblemished record on the local sports scene this winter, wound up their first season of competition in appropriately unusual fashion last week. In their final four games, the teenage boys won two contests they were expected to lose and lost to a pair of teams they were expected to defeat.

Regardless, Coach Peter Cook's team, with a better-than-anticipated final campaign mark of 7-5, laid claim to a successful debut season. The 20 participating youths, most of them Princeton High students, contributed their own, hard-earned summer-work money to rent ice time at the Lawrenceville Rink. They were responsible for launching a solid, volunteer sports group—a group which already is seeking additional recruits for next year.

The Junior hockey players reached their season's peak in one of the last four outings, when they effected a fine 8-3 verdict over the New Jersey All-Stars, a highly rated group of high school students from the northern part of the state. In other encounters, the Princeton sextet split with a senior Somerville team, winning 4-0 and losing 6-5, and dropped a "rubber" game to the Lawrenceville School JV, 6-3.

Regardless of the thrilling victory over the All-Stars, Joey Jay of PHS turned the "hat trick" for the first time this winter. Otherwise, in all four contests, the Princeton scoring was well-balanced, leaving Coach Cook optimistic over the Junior division's chances for marked improvement next year.

Bart Leach, coach of the Hun School basketball five and one of the Seminary's three top scorers, pointed out that "It's pretty hard to compare our brand of ball with college teams because the level of competition is so different." However, he noted that the unbeaten club, loaded with 6-foot-plus college basketball veterans who won all of their games in overwhelming fashion, was anxious to test its mettle against stronger opponents.

Hun Ousted in Hurry. Despite high hopes of going places in the post-season Group 2 Hedsdramers and Coaches basketball tournament, Hun School found itself mismatched in the opening round and lost badly to Debarton School, 70-43. The Morristown entry, with a regular season record of 16-2 (as opposed to the Princeton club's 5-8), went on later last week to capture the divisional crown.

Each of the Johnny Huns' three leading scorers, Earl Cottrell, Jim Lavan and Frank Lewallen, managed to reach double figures on Peddie School's neutral court in Hightstown, but their point-making efforts were smaller than usual and never enough to challenge Debarton's overall superiority. Cottrell connected for 16 markers, Lavan for 11 and Lewallen for 10.

The end of the tourney trail came quickly for the Red and Black as Debarton jumped to a decisive 16-8 first-quarter lead and continued to outscore Hun in every period. Debarton's height advantage represented a big difference, but the ballgame factor was the performance of Bob Collins, who was fed the ball almost continuously under the

In the Group 2 finals, Delbarton came from behind in the final quarter to stun Newark Academy, 41-37, in a thrilling contest. With Collins again paving the way, the winning quintet became the first county school team in 54 years of interscholastic basketball competition to take a state title.

communicate out of his Camden office.

According to the federal tax authority, recent statistics—based on actual experience—indicate that secondary school students submit only two erroneous returns per 100, while adults make errors on 25 of each 100 returns. Part of this good record, he explained, is due to the fact that teenagers in the Princeton area currently are being offered a tax training program at Princeton High School, Miss Fine's School, Hun School and Lawrenceville School.

Mr. Gross emphasized that the program, now in use in all secondary schools throughout New Jersey's 10 southern counties, provides students attending these institutions with a complete basic course in federal tax matters. At present, detailed study of taxes is provided only for business education participants at PHS and only a general review of tax matters is given to students at the other area schools, but, of significance, all students in all schools have become tax-conscious.

"We don't have a specific course in tax problems at Miss Fine's," Headmistress Shirley Davis observed, "but we do offer enough instructions so the girls can go home and sympathize with the tempers of parents."

Want to Reach More.—Principal William H. Rhodes of PHS said he considered the tax instruction "extremely beneficial," then expressed dissatisfaction over the limited amount of available materials, thus restricting the program to seniors in the business education department. "Taxes reach all of us, so tax instruction should reach all educational levels," he commented.

Stressing a need for more improved and streamlined methods of teaching the vital subject of taxes, the high school principal noted that, in spite of shortcomings in the present system, extra groups are invited to some of the business education sessions, "just to get a feeling for tax matters." Students have pointed out that their tax handbooks contain no explanation of methods and procedures, placing the too-heavy burden of clear instruction on lecturers, and the interested students urge inclusion of the information in handbooks of the future, he added.

In his communique, Mr. Gross said greater service is also being provided to taxpayers this year through the availability of tax booklets and data at the Princeton Public Library, the Harvey S. Firestone Library of Princeton and all of the large public libraries throughout southern New Jersey.

As might be expected, the district director concluded his message by reminding residents of Princeton and its environs which lie in Mercer County to file their federal income tax returns — on time — with his office at Seventh and Cooper Streets in Camden.

R. P. Blackmur Honored. Richard P. Blackmur, poet, critic and professor of English at Princeton, is one of 13 persons elected to the National Institute of Arts and Letters, it was announced this week.

Mr. Blackmur was named in a distinguished group that included Peggy Bacon, Ivan Mestrovic, Ivor Winters, Ben Shahn and Pulitzer Prize-winners Paul Horgan, H. L. Davis and Theodore Roethke.

News of the Churches

Pastors Join In Service. Over $300 has been raised for the assistance of Negro pastors in Montgomery, Alabama, following the service of intercession held Friday by Princeton clergymen in the First Presbyterian Church. At the service itself, $84 was collected, and $125 more is expected.

A similar service was held last Thursday by students at Princeton Theological Seminary, who sent a letter of sympathy to Montgomery's Negro pastors. The Seminary letter was signed by 127 of the 500 students who attend the institution. Two of the students are Negroes.

The Princeton Pastors' Association, sponsors of the intercession service, includes three Negro pastors and to emphasize the racial issue, the service included Scriptural readings by both white and Negro ministers. A few of the pastors who belong to the Association are, in fact, the pastors of mixed congregations. The First Presbyterian Church has a Negro member and several attenders.

At the Witherspoon Church, there are nearly a dozen white members, many of them Seminary students who sing in the choir, and serve as assistants to the minister. Over half a dozen Negro families are parishioners of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. There are also occasional Negro attenders at the Methodist church.

Princeton's pastors, who would like to see a greater intergration, point out that the doors of their churches are always open to anyone and that, in Princeton, the differences that keep Negro and white citizens in separate churches are more often theological than racial.

"Automation" to be Discussed. An open meeting on automation will be held next Thursday at 8 p.m. by the Men's Association of the First Presbyterian Church. Three speakers will explore and explain this subject: Dr. Elmer W. Engstrom, senior vice-president of RCA, Dean Kenneth H. Condit, dean emeritus of the school of engineering, Princeton, and Dr. Frederick H. Harbison, professor of economics and director of the industrial relations section of the university. Paul K. Weimer will be the chairman of the meeting, and the public is invited to attend.

The speakers will provide the background necessary for a discussion of automation. Then they will discuss its effects on the worker, and the benefits and difficulties it presents for management and industrial relations.

Methodist Men Breakfast. Dr. Lester H. Clee will speak to members of the Methodist Men's group this Sunday at an 8 a.m. breakfast meeting at the Peacock

THE RIGHT HAND OF BROTHERHOOD: Twenty-one clergymen from Princeton attended last Friday's Service of Intercession at the First Presbyterian Church, a service of prayer for Negro ministers in Alabama who have been indicted as a result of the bus boycott in Montgomery. Left to right: the Rev. Charles W. Marker of the Princeton Methodist Church, the Rev. Dr. William T. Parker, First Baptist, and Dr. John R. Bodo, First Presbyterian, discuss the service in which Negro and white pastors shared the reading of Scriptural passages. For further information, see below. (Richards Photo)

Ian, Dr. Clee, member of the New Jersey Parole Board, has also served as chairman of the New Jersey State Board of Mediation. He was a Presbyterian minister in Newark for 25 years.

Presbyterian Women Will Meet. "The Challenge of a Difficult Field" is the subject chosen by the Rev. H.E. Davenport for a talk before the Woman's Association of the First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Mr. Davenport will speak next Monday at 3 p.m. Former missionary in Iraq, the speaker is now a graduate student at the Seminary. He will show slides to illustrate his talk. Mrs. C.S. Groom is in charge of the program and its devotions, and members of Circle One will be hostesses.

Refugee Committee Set Up. The newly formed Committee on Refugee Resettlement of the First Presbyterian church will meet for the first time this Thursday at 8 p.m. to elect a permanent chairman and to lay plans for its major undertaking: finding job and home for one or more refugee families.

Members of the Committee include Lawrence Benson, Werner Blumenthal, Mrs. William Chamberlin, William Dix, Walter Foster, Mrs. Loefferts Loetscher, Mrs. James McHenry, Frederick Polhemus, William Scheide, Mrs. Howard Vernilya, Mrs. Walter Wagoner and Elis Willard. Dr. Warren G. Findley, chairman of the church's Committee on Social Concern, will serve as convener for this meeting until a permanent chairman has been chosen.

PHS in District Finals. Coach Tony Borzoka's scrappy Little Tigers definitely will play in the Central Jersey group 3 basketball tournament finale, thanks to a sparkling second-round rout of North Plainfield High, but a few particulars about the big game still remained in doubt as Town Topics went to press.

This is the picture, as simplified as possible: Princeton, which won the lucky 13th victory tucked away (against five setbacks), will meet the winner of a dash between the Long Branch and Manasquan (played Wednesday night) this Friday or Saturday evening, probably in Princeton University's Dillon gymnasium or on the Rutgers University court.

Inasmuch as PHS dropped a pulsating 86-82 contest to Long Branch earlier during the regular season (Manasquan was a Princeton opponent), the group 3 clincher should be a worthwhile spectacle for spectators. Interested Princetonians will be able to get details of the district finale by checking the high school or Town Topics anytime Friday.

Tuesday night's conquest of North Plainfield, achieved in the new and neutral confines at Somerville High, was practically carbon copy of the campaign's opening win (80-44) over the Canuks, though an overdose of fouls and a generally rough-and-tumble exhibition tended to mar the journey game. Princeton's customary one-two punch, Rags Trotman and Lee Annmerman, got the Little Tigers off to a brilliant start and a vaunted assortment of performers kept the victors ahead throughout. Trotman, widely known as "Marvelous Mary" and understandably so, spent the second quarter on the bench with a cut knee, but still managed high point honors at 28, almost even with his season's average (28.7) and one marker in front of his previous output against North Plainfield. Captain Annmerman, a leader under the boards near 30 rebounds, added the PHS attack immeasurably, too, with 17 points. In addition to Trotman, Princeton playmaker Nick Kovalakides was forced out of play in the third period with a badly-cut eye. In fact, there were men all over the floor most of the night in a game dominated by fouls. The tall but inept Canuks were guilty of a majority of the misdeeds, but PHS connected on only 19 of 40 free throws for a showing which must be improved by the week end.

The Little Tigers broke fast and led by 19-6 at the first-period mark and 40-20 at halftime, so there was never any question about the outcome. Dick Berger, after contributing eight vital points, fouled out midway in the third stanza, just when Kovalakides was nursing his cut. So Coach Borzoka experimented with his one-two punch, plus three JV standouts — Alan Annmerman, George Wilson and Steve Hogarty, and the results were most encouraging. PHS had difficulty from the foul line, but hit on a creditable 46% (30 of 65) from the floor. Ray Cevera, the fifth Blue and White regular, chipped in with eight points. PHS victim, 71-49. Meanwhile, Long Branch defeated Somerville (still another PHS victim), 57-54, for the right to meet Manasquan. The team which takes this week end's Central Jersey match, be it Princeton or Long Branch or Manasquan, will move on to the all-state tournament, scheduled to begin next week.

To earn the right to play Princeton, given a first-round bye, the Canuks defeated South River another PHS victim, 71-49. Meanwhile, Long Branch defeated Somerville (still another PHS victim), 57-54, for the right to meet Manasquan. The team which takes this week end's Central Jersey match, be it Princeton or Long Branch or Manasquan, will move on to the all-state tournament, scheduled to begin next week.

Subdivisions Aboard. Plans for subdivision of a number of properties were advanced to various stages along the road to development in sessions of the respective planning boards of the Township and Borough this week.

In the Township, plans for cutting up famed "Constitution Hill" along Stockton Street received final approval, subject to posting of a performance bond. The 12 lots on the property of Alexander P. Morgan, et al and will eventually face "Independence Drive" (which enters Stockton at right angles) and "Constitution Drive" (parallel to Stockton).

The Borough Planning Board, after considerable discussion approved a subdivision plan for property of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Snow off Nassau Street. A potential of 17 lots can now pass in to the hands of Princeton University for development, although there is no definite time schedule as yet.

The lots lie along a T-shaped street pattern. The chief road will be a virtual extension of Wilton Street, with the cross-piece double cul-de-sacs placed where the completing links of Spruce Street may some day be unable to reach a solution with adjoining property owner Arthur M. Conger on complete development of the Spruce link to acceptance of the compromise plan.

A proposal to divide lands of Harrison Construction Co. behind the Shopping Center in the Township went into executive session discussion. The proposed plan subdivision, with 64 proposed lots, is preparatory to sale to a developer.

Two plans in the Borough advanced a bit further, receiving approval to go ahead and submit final drawings. The Borough board told representatives of Magister Construction that a subcommittee had decided that Harrison Street North be continued as a 60-foot right of way, so the project was cleared for submission of final plans. The proposed development of 18 homes is at the intersection corner of Harrison and Hamilton.

Submission of final plans for subdivision of property on the sides of Harrison between Ewing and Franklin was also authorized. The land is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Williamson and includes land for 14 homes in the Fifth and 18 in the Township. The Township portion has already received approval.

Final plans will be due for public hearing at the April session of the board, provided they are submitted in time for consideration by Engineer J. Russell Riker.

Borough Buildings Planned. Preliminary steps are being taken by the mayor and council for the construction of a new borough assembly and firehouse (the latter for the Hook and Ladder Co.) on North Harrison Street. The location is that of the veterans' housing removed last fall.

Selection of an architect is scheduled to be announced shortly, with a bond issue planned to underwrite the building cost. The garage would replace the structure now in use at the foot of John Street, while the new firehouse would supplant the building used by Hook and Ladder on Witherspoon Street for several decades.

Fire at Campus Club. Princeton Campus Club survived another fire Tuesday morning, but the $400 damage caused by a trash can blaze reached nowhere near the proportions of the 1951 fire which resulted in thousands of dollars damage as it gutted the third floor of the undergraduate eating club.

Three companies of firemen answered the early morning alarm and quelled the flames within 10 minutes. The fire, apparently resulting from spontaneous combustion in the trash barrels, damaged the walls of a storeroom adjoining the kitchen.

presently resulting from spontaneous combustion in the trash barrels, damaged the walls of a storeroom adjoining the kitchen. Zanger, a student living across Washington Road in 1875 Hall, noticed the smoke and called the club steward who promptly called the firemen. The 1951 fire occurred on the eve of the Princeton-Barnum football game and destroyed the dormitory on the third floor.
